Ron Klinger is a highly skilled, energetic trainer, facilitator, and coach with more than 15 years of experience in leading, guiding, developing and supporting individual and organizational growth.

Ron is the CEO, Chief Engagement Officer, of Motivational Transitions, where he conducts academic and career coaching for high school and college students, is a leadership trainer and coach, and provides organizational consulting where he works to, “Enhance lives through unleashing human potential”.

As a seasoned training professional and consultant, Ron has delivered a vast array of staff training and development solutions for large and small businesses, colleges and universities, and independent school districts. Additionally, Ron has been a professional speaker at many local, regional and national conferences, and has conducted sessions on topics such as Talent Management, Team and Organizational Effectiveness, Servant Leadership, Motivation, Goal Setting, and Quality Service. He is the sole facilitator for the Management and Leadership Certificate Program, in the Center for Executive Education within the School of Business at the University of Houston-Clear Lake. He is also the host of The Unleashed Radio Hour, heard on Business 1110am KTEK, home of Bloomberg Business Radio in Houston.

Ron’s programs promise to be value added, interactive, dynamic, and high energy presentations that will leave you with the tools, motivation, inspiration, and real world application to achieve your desired results in the areas of human performance and organizational growth.

Based in Houston, Texas, Ron enjoys being of service to others and serves on several non-profit boards including Houston’s Best and Brightest Companies To Work For™. He has a passion to support the growth and development of others and brings a sincere, genuine care to all. Ron believes that one’s experiences facilitate opportunities for reflection and learning, and in return growth.
